

Win your own architect

Let Hudson Architects spend a day with you, worth £2,000, designing your ideal glass project

HOW TO ENTER

All you have to do is send four photos of your proposed space from different angles and 250 words outlining what you'd like to achieve, along with your name and address, to insideout@newsmagazines.co.uk or to Architect Competition, insideout, News Magazines Ltd, PO Box 50842, London SW3 5UP. Closing date is Thursday 1 June 2006.

We can all sketch a box on the back of a beer mat and call it a design. Fortunately, when it comes to reworking our homes, we have an army of talented architects to do it for real. This month, we are offering the chance to win the help of arguably the best in the country – Anthony Hudson – who will kick-start the creation of your project in glass.

Anthony Hudson is the designer of Baggly House (below, second from right), the definitive contemporary home of the past 20 years, and winner of awards from the likes of the Royal Institute of British Architects, The Civic Trust and The Sunday Times. His company, Hudson Architects, has gained a reputation for innovative work on a range of projects (remaining pictures), including urban and rural regeneration and private housing.

The winner will receive a visit and design sketches from Hudson or his team to help you start turning any glass project into a reality. Hudson Architects, 49-59 Old Street, London EC1 (020 7490 3411, hudsonarchitects.co.uk)

RULES: the prize must be taken 30 June – 31 December 2006. Please make digital photos no more than 200kb each. Competition open to UK and Eire residents only. One winner will receive a total of eight hours of professional services from Anthony Hudson or his team. Each entry must be your original work and not previously published. The judges' decision is final; no correspondence will be entered into. Entries will be judged on how clever and inspirational they are. For terms and conditions, see page 10.
